

SLB Awarded Multi-Year Contracts to Support Oman's Energy Development

Advanced technologies and solutions will help drive production efficiency and maximize recovery

HOUSTON, January 28, 2026 — SLB (NYSE: SLB) has been awarded two five-year contracts by Petroleum Development Oman (PDO) to supply wellheads and artificial lift technologies for operations in Block-6, Oman's largest oil and gas concession, while advancing in-country value (ICV).

The contracts include the provision of low-pressure, high-pressure, and thermal wellheads, as well as electric submersible pumps (ESPs) and progressive cavity pumps (PCPs). These solutions are expected to increase recovery rates and extend the productive life of Block-6 assets. Key milestones include expanding local manufacturing capabilities and introducing made-in-Oman gate valve production within six months of commencement.

"These awards reflect our deep commitment to Oman's energy future and advancing in-country value through local manufacturing and talent development," said Jesus Lamas, president, Middle East and North Africa, SLB. "By producing more equipment in country and investing in Omani expertise, we are ensuring that PDO's strategic goals are met with sustainable, locally driven approaches. Our focus is on delivering innovative wellhead and artificial lift solutions that drive production efficiency and maximize recovery. Through our ongoing investment in advanced technologies and tailored services, we support our customers' production and recovery goals with capabilities designed to meet their evolving operational needs."

Wellheads will be produced at SLB's Rusayl production center, and ESPs will be assembled at its Nizwa assembly, repair, and testing center, supporting hundreds of Omani employees. SLB will deploy advanced technologies including the 15k SOLIDrill modular compact wellhead system, ESP surveillance systems, and ESP permanent magnet motors, which reduce power consumption and enhance sustainability.
